Section 1 | Economic Update

Economic Update

- The US economy continues to recover and while some pockets of the economy remain dislocated, real gross domestic product (GDP) is approaching pre-pandemic levels. The recovery has been fueled by robust fiscal spending, accommodative monetary policy, and a swift vaccine rollout. These factors are beginning to moderate but should continue to provide tailwinds for the economy in the coming quarters. Vaccinations have slowed down, and infection rates in the US have recently ticked up but remain well below their peak. Some pandemic-related fiscal relief is starting to phase out, but President Biden and a group of bipartisan senators have agreed to an overall framework for a roughly $1 trillion infrastructure plan (including about $579 billion in new federal spending above previously approved levels). Though the details still need to be hashed out and a deal would need full congressional approval, the negotiations signal that more fiscal stimulus is likely on the horizon. Meanwhile, the Federal Reserve continues to signal that it will look past any near-term uptick in inflation to facilitate continued improvement in the labor market. Estimates for US GDP growth remain strong. The current Bloomberg consensus estimate for 2021 and 2022 US GDP growth are 6.6% and 4.1%, respectively.
- The Federal Open Market Committee (FOMC) kept monetary policy unchanged at its June meeting. The fed funds target rate remains in the range of 0.0% to 0.25%, and the Fed continues to purchase $80 billion of Treasuries per month, and $40 billion of agency mortgage-backed securities per month. The Fed has started to discuss the idea of reducing its asset purchases at some point, but that decision remains uncertain. FOMC members' updated economic projections also suggest that the Fed may start to raise interest rates in 2023, versus the previous estimate of 2024, as the economy may be on track to reach their employment and inflation goals at a faster than expected pace. Overall, monetary policy remains highly accommodative for now, but the Fed seems to be inching toward a path of policy normalization. We anticipate the Fed will remain on the sidelines over the near-term, but we believe the probability that the Fed will begin tapering its asset purchases during the first half of next year has increased.
- The yield curve flattened in June. We believe multiple factors influenced Treasury rates in the month, including market technicals, dollar strengthening, uneven global vaccination rates, and a more modest forecast for U.S. infrastructure spending than initially expected. Nevertheless, we believe longer-term rates have room to move higher this year and we believe the Treasury yield curve is poised to steepen in the second half of the year.

Employment

Job growth was stronger than expected in June. U.S. nonfarm payrolls increased by 850,000, versus the consensus forecast of 720,000. May payrolls were also revised up by 24,000 to 583,000. On a trailing 3-month and 6-month basis, payrolls increased by an average of 567,000 and 543,000 per month, respectively, which is indicative of a steady recovery in the labor market. The leisure and hospitality sectors continue to drive the job gains in June and increased by 343,000. Government payrolls also posted a solid increase of 188,000 in June. The labor participation rate was unchanged at 61.6% in June and is 1.7% lower than the pre-pandemic level. The employment-population ratio was also unchanged in the month at 58.0% and is 3.1% below the pre-pandemic level. The unemployment rate ticked higher to 5.9% in June from 5.8% in May and remains well above the pre-pandemic low of 3.5% in February 2020. The U-6 underemployment rate, which includes those who are marginally attached to the labor force and employed part time for economic reasons, declined to 9.8% in June from 10.2% in May (versus 7.0% in February 2020). The index of aggregate private weekly payrolls was up 2.8% in June from February 2020, suggesting a solid increase in aggregate wages.

Initial Claims for Unemployment

Initial Claims For Unemployment April 02, 2021 - July 02, 2021

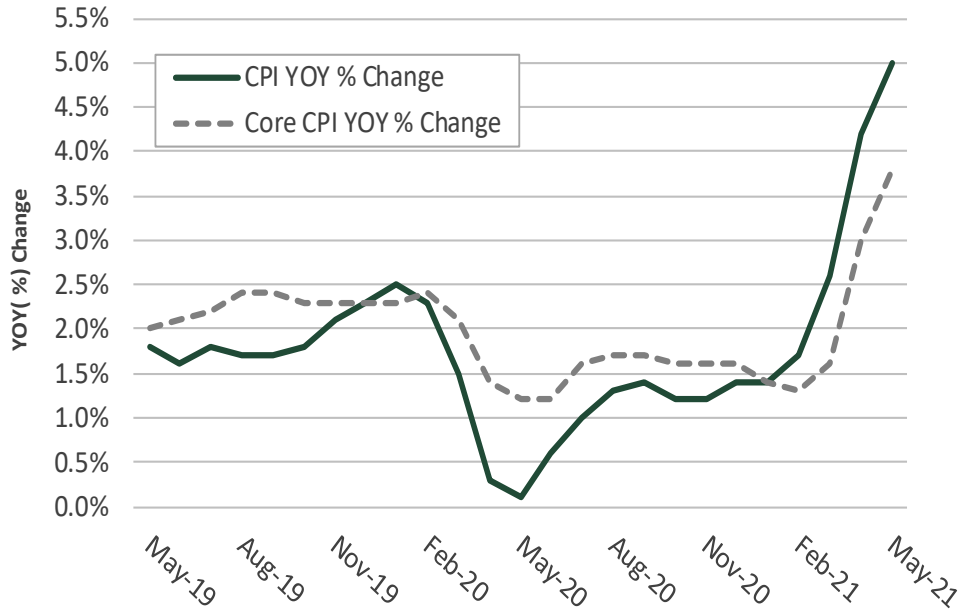

Source: US Department of Labor

In the most recent week, the number of initial jobless claims was 373,000 versus 371,000 in the prior week. The level of continuing unemployment claims (where the data is lagged by one week) declined modestly to 3.339 million versus 3.484 million in the prior week. Although continuing jobless claims have declined significantly from the peak of nearly 25 million last May, they remained above the 2019 (pre-pandemic) average of 1.7 million.

Inflation

Consumer Price Index (CPI)

Source: US Department of Labor

Personal Consumption Expenditures (PCE)

Source: US Department of Commerce

The Consumer Price Index (CPI) was up 5.0% year-over-year in May versus up 4.2% in April. Core CPI (CPI less food and energy) was up 3.8% year-over-year in May, versus up 3.0% in April. The Personal Consumption Expenditures (PCE) index was up 3.9% year-over-year in May, versus up 3.6% year-over-year in April. Core PCE was up 3.4% year-over-year in May, versus up 3.1% year-over-year in April. Current inflation readings are running well above the Fed's longer-run target of around 2.0%. However, the Fed believes that much (if not all) of the recent pricing pressure have been caused by pandemic-related factors (e.g., base effects and supply chain disruptions). Fed policymakers have reiterated that they believe most of those factors will be temporary.

Economic growth is believed to have accelerated even further in the second quarter to an annualized rate of 9.2%. Yield Curves

As of June 30, 2021

Term	3/31/2021	6/30/2021
3 Month	0.02%	0.04%

The treasury yield curve is steeper on a year-over-year basis. The 3-month T-bill yield was about nine basis points lower, while the 2-year Treasury yield was about ten basis points higher, and the 10-Year Treasury yield was about 81 basis points higher, year-over-year, as of June month-end. The Fed has signaled plans to keep the front end of the Treasury yield curve anchored near zero until 2023. We believe longer-term rates still have room to move higher this year.

Performance results are presented gross-of-advisory fees and represent the client's Total Return. The deduction of advisory fees lowers performance results. These results include the reinvestment of dividends and other earnings. Past performance may not be indicative of future results. Therefore, clients should not assume that future performance of any specific investment or investment strategy will be profitable or equal to past performance levels. All investment strategies have the potential for profit or loss. Economic factors, market conditions or changes in investment strategies, contributions or withdrawals may materially alter the performance and results of your portfolio.

Index returns assume reinvestment of all distributions. Historical performance results for investment indexes generally do not reflect the deduction of transaction and/or custodial charges or the deduction of an investment management fee, the incurrence of which would have the effect of decreasing historical performance results. It is not possible to invest directly in an index.

Fixed income investments are subject to interest, credit and market risk. Interest rate risk: the value of fixed income investments will decline as interest rates rise. Credit risk: the possibility that the borrower may not be able to repay interest and principal. Low rated bonds generally have to pay higher interest rates to attract investors willing to take on greater risk. Market risk: the bond market in general could decline due to economic conditions, especially during periods of rising interest rates.

Ratings information have been provided by Moody's, S&P and Fitch through data feeds we believe to be reliable as of the date of this statement, however we cannot guarantee its accuracy.

Security level ratings for U.S. Agency issued mortgage-backed securities ("MBS") reflect the issuer rating because the securities themselves are not rated. The issuing U.S. Agency guarantees the full and timely payment of both principal and interest and carries a AA+/Aaa/AAA by S&P, Moody's and Fitch respectively.

FY 2021

Summary of Monthly Activity

The net cash inflow for the month of June is $1.9 million. The City has $48.6 million invested in LAIF which is available to address any significant cash outflow requirements during the month.

Receipts:

Property taxes are received in December, January, April and May and are the high receipt months. Other than these months, receipts have relatively small fluctuations. June's projected receipts were $6.9 million and actual receipts were $11.1 million. Actual receipts were $4.2 million higher than projected due mostly to the receipt of a $3.7 million American Rescue Plan federal grant.

Disbursements:

Cash outflow for June was $9.3 million. The amount of disbursements vary based on the number of pay periods in a month, the number of accounts payable dates in a month and the activity submitted from other departments. June's projected disbursements were $11.0 million, actual disbursements were $9.3 million. Actual disbursements were lower than expected by $1.7 million due to the timing of the police contract payment for June ($697,000); lower purchased water costs of $832,000; and lower capital costs of $486,000.
